

Single canvassing area for ARMM eyed

By Jerome Alang

THE COMMISSION on Elections recently and it is considering a single canvassing area per province in the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao on August 5.

Comer Clar Vergara Makis is also hopeful that all ballot boxes from the region's 4,000 precincts would be brought to the canvassing area in Cagayan.

This, he said, would dispel accusations that members of the house of elections inspectors — mostly public school teachers — are favoring or are being influenced to favor one candidate or party.

In areas where the election inspectors are "on site" or equipped with all the needed facilities during the counting in the centers, Makis added.

The move would then be created by the state and the commission of election inspectors in the representation of the political parties. After this, the general election would be held.

The Commission also said ARMM of 1994 in spots with during their conference in Cagayan City last Monday which agreed on the plan and hoped that the election would be clean.

Thousands protest Gaza pullout plan

TEL AVIV, Israel—Tens of thousands of supporters of the Israeli government's plan to pull out of the Gaza Strip were being held back from marching on the territory by a mass of police and soldiers Tuesday.

With the police line that is fast becoming one of the most tense since the start of the war in Iraq, the police have been ordered to use force to prevent protesters from reaching the Gaza border, according to Israeli television and Israeli police.

Police officers in the Gaza area are also being ordered to use force to prevent protesters from reaching the Gaza border, according to Israeli television and Israeli police.

Iraq rebels attack anew; 15 killed

BAGHDAD—Thirteen Iraqis were killed and 150 wounded in Tuesday's insurgent attacks against oil rigs at a base in southern Iraq.

Insurgents have stepped up their attacks in the last few weeks, with more than 140 killed and 1,000 wounded in the last few days alone.

Thirteen of the 15 deaths were in the oil rig area, with the rest of the deaths in the surrounding area.

In the deadliest attack on Tuesday, 10 workers were killed when their oil rig was hit by a rocket.

Another 10 workers were killed when their oil rig was hit by a rocket.

One of the dead was a policeman, while the other was a member of the Iraqi army.

The deadliest attack of recent days was on Sunday in the town of Al-Bayji, south of Baghdad, when a rocket hit a bus carrying 15 people.

At least 10 people were killed and 15 wounded in the attack.

Pakistan captures 5 Taliban leaders

ISLAMABAD—Pakistani intelligence agents have arrested five senior Taliban leaders, including a deputy to Osama bin Laden, in a major blow to the Taliban.

The arrests were made on Monday after a series of operations in the northwestern province of FATA.

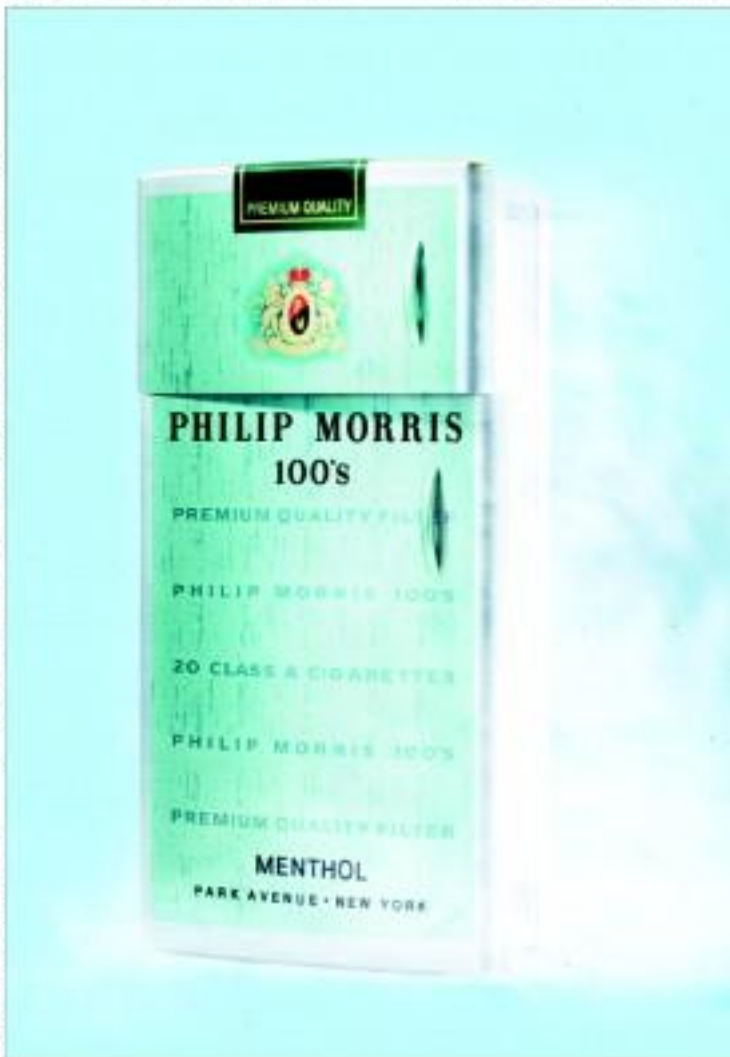

The officials identified two of the captured men as Mullah Abdul Ghafur, a deputy to Osama bin Laden, and Mullah Abdul Ghafur, a deputy to Osama bin Laden.

They would not disclose the names of the remaining three leaders, but one official said they are also important Taliban leaders who are in the northwestern province of FATA.

No government officials were available to confirm the arrests.

Pakistan, a key ally in the US-led war on terror, has arrested more than 700 Taliban and al-Qaida members, including high-level operatives, since the start of the war in 2001.

The Taliban and al-Qaida have not been defeated, but US and Afghan officials believe they are losing out in Pakistan's rugged tribal northwestern province.

Britain to pass new antiterror law

LONDON—British interior minister announced a stop-and-search law requiring tough new antiterror laws to be introduced after he said "terror support" from the opposition parties led to the London bombings.

The announcement came as the death toll from the country's worst terror attack rose by one to 34, and as a report linked Britain's support of the Iraq war to the July 7 bombing bombing of the London Underground.

Home Secretary Charles Clarke said he and his colleagues in the main opposition Conservative and Liberal Democrat parties agreed in principle to cooperate on the draft legislation following last week's talks.

"We believe this is the right way to proceed and believe that it will enable us to address the threat we face with a unity and determination which is critical," Clarke said by David Davis of the Conservative and the Liberal Democrat Mark Davis, said opposition.

The bill is expected to be put before parliament in October when parliament resumes after its summer recess and before the September 11 anniversary.

The new law would allow the police to stop and search anyone they suspect of terrorism, for example pedestrians who pass outside houses or down the street at night.

"Tough new laws were likely to be introduced, support among a public still reeling from the news shock of the suicide bombings coupled with the discovery the attackers were home grown."

Clarke said he was confident he was that the bill would receive parliamentary backing. Clarke said "Many members of the House support the reform we are in the process of" he also said that the government was ready to consider more legislation if the security services deem such a move desirable, but he noted that police for the time being were concentrating on investigating the London bombings.

Along from the legislative debate, the Home Secretary of International Affairs, James in Charles Clarke, concluded in a report that the new legislation is "a first step" in a broader anti-terrorism strategy. Clarke said he had that there is a link with the bombings.

"There is no doubt that the situation we face has imposed particular difficulties for the UK, and for the entire coalition against terrorism," said the London-based research center in its study "The Impact of the London bombings on a High-risk Policy."

Foreign Secretary Jack Straw however denied the allegation that London's part in the US-led, British-led coalition made a more vulnerable. "The coalition is a coalition of nations, not a coalition of cities," Straw said.

Clarke said the new law is not intended to be a deterrent to terrorism, but a way of dealing with it. He said the UK is not a "hot spot" for terrorism, but a "hot spot" for terrorism.

In the charge, Clarke's official spokesperson said both London and Washington simply had the same problem to solve: how to prevent terrorism. Meanwhile, the British police investigation into the blast at the London Underground station will be completed.

Vietnam war vet Westmoreland dies at 91

WASHINGTON—Gen. William Westmoreland, the highly decorated former commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam whose name became synonymous with the US military struggle in Southeast Asia, died last Monday at a retirement home in Charleston, South Carolina, he was 91.

Westmoreland, a veteran of three wars and commander of three United States military divisions during his career, commanded US forces in Vietnam from 1964 to 1968, a role that earned him the nickname "Old Blood" in the field.

Chief architect of the "war of attrition" strategy, he was born in New York City and served in the US Army during World War II. He was a member of the US House of Representatives from 1969 to 1975. Manila is not the Philippines

A question may be asked: Since when did Manila become the Philippines' largest city?

In yesterday's TV show, the Guinness and Guinness suggested to O'Leary that she transfer broadcasting to CBS or Boies. They stopped short, however, of explicitly stating approval of the suggestion.

the anti-ERCA rally was peaceful and unopposed. To me, as a college student, this is obvious. It is all right if the people go on such gatherings in the exercise of their constitutional rights, but not if they are just held back by selfish politicians who are hungry for power.

—RODOLFO C. SALLA, a fourth-year student, Manila, San Pablo City

Political Church

TYN PHILANTHROPY is fast emerging among the most strategic activities in the world. Thanks to the Catholic Church in the Philippines, which has long been recognized as deep to the nation where it engaged full time in politics after the fall of the Marcos Regime.

Corruption, which is the root of all evil, is something that can be traced to the heart of every man. Instead of submitting to up to the moral standards of the Filipino people, what has the Church done? Even kinder in the Philippines is now riddled with political crime. Instead of fostering Christian discipline and trusting the Lord, he leaves his good persons and how to love their fellowmen.

Share with the family if we are to stamp out corruption. If each member of the family would be able to listen to "testimonies" which would strengthen their resolve to stay away from the temptations of an easy life, then we might just be able to root out this problem, which is eating up the very heart of our nation.

SUBIC BAY FREEPORT—Environment Secretary Michael Defensor ruled out the immediate closure of a marine park here where three false killer whales had died over the last four years, according to a Protected Areas and Wildlife Bureau official. PAWB Director Theresa Mundita Lim, head of a DENR investigating team sent here on Tuesday, said the shutdown of Ocean Adventure, an action sought by animal welfare groups, would only come after an evaluation would show strong basis for the facility's closure.

Animal welfare

"Instead of being antagonistic about it, we are giving the project proponent a chance to explain how it addressed animal welfare and environmental protection issues," Lim said.

The Subic Bay Marine Exploratorium Inc. (SBMEI) has operated the park, located at the Camayan Wharf, since February 2001.

Earlier, Gregorio Magdaraog, Ocean Adventure vice president for corporate affairs, said closing the park would "not only sentence the marine mammals there to certain death but would deprive Filipinos of the opportunity to truly appreciate the value of marine mammals as partners of humanity in the enormous tasks of saving our oceans." The Earth Island Institute-Philippines, which has opposed the venture, said the death of the whales—Hock on July 8 this year, Coral in January 2004 and Deuce in July 2001—was enough reason to stop holding animals in captivity for entertainment shows.

Imported

The SBMEI, through the Subic Management Associates, imported at least six false killer whales (Pseudorca crassidens) and eight South American sea lions (Otaria byronia) from China in 2000. A fisheries special permit covered that importation, documents from the Department of Agriculture showed.

EII said the project was not consulted with the committee on animal welfare, an entity created by the Philippine Animal Welfare Act or Republic Act 8485.

Lim said the PAWB would review the environmental impact study (EIS) of the SBMEI and the environmental clearance certificate (EOC) issued to it by the ecology center of the Subic Bay Metropolitan Authority.

Indigenous folk evicted by mayor from Baguio lots

By Vincent Cabreza
PDI Northern Luzon Bureau

BAGUIO CITY—Indigenous peoples on Tuesday fought demolition squads sent by the city government to remove more than 30 houses that were built on a government reservation now being used as a dairy farm and research facility here.

No one was hurt but city demolition team members were bracing for a week long operation.

Dr. Georgia Kalangan, the farm's operation manager, said the National Commission on Indigenous Peoples has stalled the demolition since 2003 after the agency issued a restraining order against the Department of Agriculture.

Three Ibaloi clans have staked their ancestral land claims over the farm—the Quillo and Ikang Paus families and the heirs of Mateo Cariño, the Ibaloi herdsman who won a United States Supreme Court ruling that acknowledged his ancestral rights over what is now Camp John Hay in the early 1900s.

But the Court of Appeals issued a resolution last week affirming its April reversal of the NCIP injunction. The CA said the NCIP had no jurisdiction over the farm.

The ruling affects the claims of the Ikang Paus family over a portion of the 94-hectare government property.

Myma Caoagas, ancestral domain officer, issued a letter certifying that NCIP has not issued the Ikang Paus family a Certificate of Ancestral Land Title (CALT).

The NCIP has yet to issue ancestral land titles covering Baguio City, following a controversy over alleged midnight titles that were processed during the administration of former President Joseph Estrada.

A separate CA ruling, however, affirmed NCIP's jurisdiction over an injunction petition filed by the Cariño family, said Leilene Carantes-Gallardo, NCIP Cordillera director.

"This means we have to address the two conflicting rulings from the court," she said.

Kalangan said Mayor Brulio Yaranon sent the demolition team on the strength of the first CA resolution.

DA is preparing to modernize the farm by rebuilding its dairy facilities and by restocking its cattle population in the face of proposals to break it up in favor of other government agencies, Kalangan said.

Tons of fish confiscated

PUERTO PRINCESA CITY—The Navy's Task Force 41 stationed in Palawan has confiscated fishermen's catch in Batangas. While patrolling Linapacan town, the Navy men caught 39 fisherman onboard FB Gloria, a boat registered in Batangas. The 39 fishermen were caught using fine mesh nets, which is a violation of the Fisheries Code of the Philippines. The owner of the boat was identified as Ramon Zamesa of Nasugbu, Batangas, while the boat's captain was Restituto Comendador. In Roxas, Palawan, more than 700 kilograms of fish were also confiscated by Task Force 41. They caught 16 fishermen on board two boats using "hulbot-hulbot," another illegal means of fishing. The confiscated fish were turned over to municipal agriculture offices.

COA probes 2 auditors in Pampanga

CITY OF SAN FERNANDO—The Commission on Audit is investigating two provincial auditors in Pampanga over alleged unexplained wealth and graft involving the capitol's quarry operations, infrastructure and social services contracts.

The investigation came on the heels of a complaint filed by a "Concerned Kapampangan" at the Office of the President, according to Raquel Ramirez-Habitan, COA assistant commissioner and general counsel.

Habitan authorized a COA team to "administer oaths, take testimony, summon witnesses and compel the production of documents by compulsory process" based on Presidential Decree No. 1445 or the government auditing code.

The COA has reassigned the two auditors to Angeles City and Masantol town.

The complaint against the two auditors cited the alleged complicity of six former and current provincial capitol executives as well as four top COA regional officials. It also revealed details on the supposed pieces of property and activities of the two auditors.

According to the complaint, the two auditors allegedly "manipulated" last year's audit report on quarry operations to hide the alleged non-remittance of revenues from at least 3,964 pads of receipts issued to barangay officials in Sto. Tomas and Minalin towns.

The receipts were allegedly produced by an unauthorized printing house and redistributed by the provincial quarry task force. The task force collects a tax of P300 per truckload of sand hauled out of Pampanga.

LTRFB OKs hike for aircon buses

THE BRAG of the Maynila, that once, police detachment has been relieved of his post after he was arrested Sunday night in Pangasinan during a buy-bust operation.

Malabon police chief Insp. Malon Guerrero said he had no objection to the arrest of the police detachment in Pangasinan as he is no longer providing law enforcement in the illegal drug charges filed against him.

"He is confined in custody and he is cleared to formally charged," Guerrero said.

According to a report filed by Chief Insp. Malon Villanueva of the Pangasinan Criminal Investigation and Detection Group, Guerrero was arrested with two officers on Sunday in a buy-bust operation on Bantalan Street, San Francisco, Pangasinan.

Reportedly found in their possession were 15 sachets of suspected shabu weighing 34.80 grams, four P100 bills and six buy-bust money and three (three) pieces with 14 sachets of amphetamine, and one Triplex Bar with plate number DBL441.

But Guerrero, in an interview, denied the allegations, saying he was only at the wrong place at the wrong time.

He was released by a prosecutor pending further investigation.

METRO air-conditioned buses will charge passengers an additional P1, starting Aug. 3, the Land Transportation Franchising and Leasing Board (LTFRB) said yesterday. New aircon buses in the province, on the other hand, will require a P2.50 extra fee.

With the order, Metro aircon buses already charging a minimum fare of P11 from the original P9 will have to add back their fare.

The LTFRB yesterday issued the order on lowering aircon fares in Metro Manila to increase their fare to P12 for the first 10 kilometers, and/or add an additional P1.75 for every succeeding kilometers.

The order also puts to rest the question as to whether or not the fare of aircon buses in Metro Manila is regulated.

Based on the LTFRB order setting a specific fare for the new buses, the fare is not being shared. Operators of these buses had long taken advantage of a major transportation department order in 2002 stating that "the provision for air-conditioned vehicles shall not be 20 percent more than the basic rate for regular vehicles."

On July 7, the LTFRB directed Metro aircon buses to increase their fare without setting the body's appearance. It also cited a Supreme Court order stating that even the fare of Metro aircon buses must be regulated.

"The board, through its order, has directed that Metro aircon buses to increase their fare to P12 for the first 10 kilometers, and/or add an additional P1.75 for every succeeding kilometers, and 30 percent higher price for the last kilometer," said the LTFRB in its order.

The approved fare for Metro aircon buses is 25 percent higher than the P9 minimum fare of regular buses. But the fare for every succeeding distance, at P1.75, is the same.

The LTFRB had earlier approved a P2 increase in minimum fare of Metro aircon buses to P11 for the first 10 kilometers for Metro aircon buses and P9 for the last 10 kilometers for Metro aircon buses. In approving the new fare, the LTFRB said it considered the existing fare and the substantial increase in cost.

Increased fares were allowed to increase their fare for the first 10 kilometers to P11, from P9. From additional kilometers will be covered by a fare of P1.75, to equal the previous P1.00. The projected fare hike was more than the P1 or 20 percent increase in minimum fare sought by the Provincial Bus Operators Association of the Philippines. The order is scheduled for publication today and take effect after 15 days, or on Aug. 3.

'Arroyo giving mothers a bad image'

By Tara V. Quinsion

A BUREAU OF NEWSPAPERS

There was a woman's group described President Macapagal-Arroyo as they led a march of 1,000 demonstrators through the Manila's Central Business District yesterday afternoon.

"Ms. Arroyo has degraded the image of the woman, a female leader, because of her bad image," said one of the demonstrators, Mrs. Arroyo.

She added, "She has degraded the image of a mother, who should be one to teach her children to be good always. But she (Arroyo) degraded it."

Women carrying their babies, toddlers, toddlers, toddlers, toddlers, and members of urban poor groups, with a sprinkling of men from various religious groups, marched to Plaza de España in the first gathering of the women and Arroyo's image in the Philippines, at the Manila Museum for Women's Perspectives and Rights Change.

The group gathered members of Gabriela, women members of Kilusang, Women's Union, Arroyo, People's Movement against Poverty, Anti-Arryo and the League of Philippine Women, and members from St. Scholastica's College.

They were joined by members of the anti-Arryo women, including men and women members of Bagong Lungsod, of the League of Women, and the League of Women.

Arroyo, who linked Arroyo's husband Benigno Arroyo and his brother-in-law Benigno Arroyo, "Arroyo" linked to "Arroyo," spoke to his mother.

Just as the women engaged in their rally, another anti-Arryo rally was held with their mothers around the Plaza de España.

Beauty is in the eyes

NOTE: They take up even less than a third of your hair, but many even jokingly say a lot about your hair and looks.

Those new are more than just the wrinkles in your coat; they all give the world a glimpse of your life by reflecting stress, fatigue, and aging to wrap the rest of your face into. Those dry lines, flaky corners and eye bags should clue you in on how your eye area requires plenty of care and pampering—and on how you should pick out the best products to reach this delicate area.

The skin you will find beneath latex gloves looks brown on our eyes as in many ways, dark circles, eye bags, fine lines, creases, etc. The goal here is, we need not use and wear a very thin, non-irritating product specifically designed for the skin.

Don't get intimidated by the usually "well-oiled" contractors available on the market. More often than not, they will do one thing this good. Besides, the eye area does age faster than the rest of the face.

If you're a little less kind to yourself and have been adding and digging at your eyes faster than you can count, ask your doctor to stop, chances are, you have more creases up there than you'd like to have.

Change Daily Eye Routine Use eye drops and help diminish the appearance of early aging eyes. Apply a small amount using your ring finger and gently pat on until fully absorbed. Never rub on eyes.

For bags that say and weigh about your coffee back, try Original & Perfect World for Spas, a light cream that "soothes out" your skin with the help of antioxidants vitamin E, linoleic acid and niacinamide.

In this case, a parent Vitamin E product is required to "share" this discrimination, water's original identity, and result in a brighter eye area. I found one in Greece K, its one cream exclusively sold in dermatologists' offices and through Antaeus Media (e-mail antaeusmedia@yahoo.com, tel: 0049062 46 50067). The cream is the secret of many stars. Greece has both Vitamin E and retinol that work in tandem to lower cell regeneration.

And just as you should care for your eyes before putting on makeup, you should make sure you give it the TLC it deserves when taking it off. Use a special cleanser (a water- and oil-based) makeup remover like Max Factor The Makeup Artist's Eyes and Lip Makeup Remover, which takes off eye makeup down to the last smudge of mascara.

but that people read the book and it makes them happier and makes them feel better, and that's what it was intended to do.

You've ventured into all kinds of genres, but is there something specific you still really want to read?

I'd like to write a stage play. For years around an original stage play I've had stage plays adapted from things I've written, and I've analyzed them and I've liked them, so I haven't. I would like to do the something for the stage, to see what happens.

Does it surprise you that you're popular, say, in this country, or when you see the reactions you get when you travel?

So, the thing is, there's more like a "kind of" feminism. There's the mutual kind of feminism that people have, which means people have heard of you even if they don't like you; stuff is done later to you, every one in the world knows that line, my Spence is famous. The party and she's the girl who says "Yup, I did it again." But apart from that, I can't identify a kind, my Spence is not a person, and, honestly, give me a teaching and line up 30 average looking Midwestern people and look me up about Britney Spence and I'll tell you anything.

But I have a sort of literary home. Because I'm interested in all these "What Culture Is America" kind of ideas about how we do it," or "What's Common, oh my God, how my Grace is within." There's no one useful, but between them. What was becoming very apparent to me, because I got in the backlogs of my website and I got to see other people are coming from... I noticed that Singapore, with a population of four million people, was coming in at number five, number six, and the Philippines.

"IITM enjoys writing. This season, I've had the full year's worth going to Glasgow and hearing these workshops 'The Witness to the World' as a children's place was coming in at maybe eight or nine, out of the world. That was the point when I said I have to go to the Philippines, I have to go to Singapore, I have to go and sing in those places because I know there are people there reading this stuff and I want to tell them what they like.

I went this morning to judge the art show and it wasn't anything between apples and oranges but like apples and chocolate and movies. In Cops there there's 9:30 a.m. and there are 354 people there, and they watch a lot of me. One moment, I hear [15] people shouting hello and I say hi, and then it just sort of erupts into a cheering, top-of-the-thrust I figure to continue to maintain a neutral shouting: ah-hah-hah-hah. Is that's best like the Beatles. It felt much, much better than that. I thought, "This is the Philippines, they are loud, they are vocal and they are really into thoughts. This is going to be real to me."

SHOPPING is a habit.
And if you're not convinced, the five finalists of B2B, Hong Kong Inc., and Hong Kong Tourism Board's (B2B) Shopping Showdown competition in this year's Shopper of the Year contest in Hong Kong will surely sway your opinion.

For weeks, we asked readers to send in e-mails and photos proving that they are really serious in the shopping arena.

They did not disappoint.
Teams in various forms across the Philippines with people willing to show their shopping skills, from you, your mom, cousin, friend, the ability to bargain in different languages—the list is endless.
All the applicants were impressive, but the stand-out was Karen T. Torres from Angeles, Tanya, Maria Gabriela & Gabriela from San Jose City, Rosalinda Antonio from Makati City, Catherine Avendaño from Pang City and Alex Crow from Penang City.

Great finds
They, along with their closest partners, met last in San Jose Friday in a final shopping showdown, to find out who gets to fly to Hong Kong to battle it out with other super shoppers from all over the world.

The contest was launched by a shopping forum called great finds for products.
The five teams that met in Angeles, a shopping hub and home of the last living giant and tiger, for the final and the most important.

Each team was given P2,000 shopping money and an hour and a half to purchase items using their shopping money—fashion and beauty, jewelry and accessories, and home appliances.
Then, the pairs of contestants were taking around Southern City with their Hong Kong 100 in hand to buy, according to the list of items.

When the timer was up, the contestants had a panel of three judges—Hong Kong Inc. executive vice president Noel Torra, International City's marketing officer Grace Karpman and the writer. They presented their purchases and finished questions about Hong

Showdown of the shopaholics

By reporter [illegible]

Kong and their passion for shopping.

Difficult

The decision was a difficult one. But Cathy Arevalo and her partner Alex Alonzo enjoyed the challenge. After showing every judge with their almost unbelievable shopping skills. They even beat their 10,000 in the last round, resulting in a handful of shopping bags (for sale for their prize funds).

Their victory came just a day before their anniversary—making the occasion more special for them.

Today, the two are in Hong Kong, competing with representatives from 17 other countries including Australia, Germany, Italy, US, India, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, China and Thailand for the Hong Kong Shopping of the Year 2005 title.

Aside from bringing their purchases home, all judges get to do that; there are great prizes in store for those who win the competition. Including several shopping bags from Cathay Pacific, a two-night stay in a Grand Deluxe Room at the Four Seasons Hotel, and a shopping spree. Special prizes will be given to different shopping categories.

Incredible

Cathy, who is a self-proclaimed "shopaholic," seems to have spent her life getting ready for this competition. "I am the most shopaholic I know. For anything get on the way of my shopping purpose in the world," she wrote in her entry.

she mentioned the time was passed when she was at a night market in Korea. "I didn't even have a credit card but I didn't let it change my shopping. I continued going from one stall to the other, not knowing that I was dropping out. I was more more motivated when my purchases, asking if she could attend to shop there with us they won't get out."

One category winner's shop Cathy chose doing what she loves the most. "I recently had gone shopping but it was Manger's open air. I really like it with a handbag, clothing, my car. I stopped in the shop, regardless of the amount I was going."

The two are determined to do their best, even deciding to do research before leaving Manila. She said, "We're young, we're hot, we can't miss anything."

Last year's winners were from Taiwan. This year, Thailand's Cathy and Alex's partner shopping, the winners might just be from the Philippines. Why? Keeping our fingers crossed.
